
CONTENTS

PREFACE	9
Chapter 1. THE CONCEPT OF MEANING AS THEORETICAL SUBJECT MATTER OF EPISTEMOLOGY	33
1.1. Meaning-dimension of creativity	33
1.2. Studying units of meaning: methodological presuppositions	46
1.3. Meaning as non-physical occurrence in the human mind	61
Chapter 2. PHILOSOPHICAL TRANSFORMATIONS OF MEANING IN COGNITIVE PROJECTS OF MODERNITY	67
2.1. Cognitive hermeneutics and the type of rationality, classic and non-classic	67
2.2. (Post)non-classic hermeneutics in the search of cognitive synthesis	86
2.3. Phenomenological implications of lingua-communicative project of the of meaningful units' analysis	102
2.4. Analytical philosophy's project: direct, conventional and primordial meaning. Reconstruction of initial (primordial) intentions	131
Chapter 3. TROPES: THE SHIFT OF MEANING IN SEMANTIC SPACE	146
3.1. Creation of semantic innovation	146
3.2. Neoromantic tradition: A. Richard's contextual concept of metaphor	153
3.3. M. Black's semantic interactionism	157
Chapter 4. EPISTEMOLOGY OF METAPHOR: DISCUSSIVE POINTS	163
4.1. D. Davidson's neo-pragmatic concept of metaphor	163

4.2. P. Ricoeur’s post-structural theory of metaphor and its ontological implications	172
4.3. M. Hesse: the importance of metaphors in scientific explanation	179
Chapter 5. THE PROBLEMS OF MEANING’S GENESIS	187
5.1. “Sensation of meaning”: pre-linguistic intuitions . . .	187
5.2. Unarticulated meaning as non-representative mental state	198
5.3. Specific concepts, images and mental models	206
Chapter 6. THE ROLE OF IMAGINATION IN HUMAN MEANING-CONSTITUTION ACTIVITY	211
6.1. Imagination in the structure of scientific conceptualization	215
6.2. Cognitive ambivalence of imagination: meaning between perception and reasoning	20
6.3. Phenomenological interpretation of the role of imagination in meaning-constitutive activity	231
6.4. Imagination and metaphor: meaning between image and sign	238
Chapter 7. THE CONCEPT OF MEANING FACING THE RADICAL NATURALISM’S CHALLENGE	248
7.1. Non-intentional epistemology as “psychology of registrations”	248
7.2. Non-intentional epistemology: its instrumental rationality and normative status	264
7.3. Communicative models of naturalistic theories of evolution and their cognitive content	274
Conclusion	288
Summary	290
References	292
Personal Index	300